

Youth-led Changemaking Competition Guidelines and Registration Form

Join the Exciting Competition!

The YES “Youth-led Changemaking Competition’ is designed to help young people to discover the changemaker within them. YES firmly believes that inside every young person lies the potential for changemaking. Unfortunately, in real life only a tiny minority of young people actually tap into the changemaking potential within them. The over-whelming majority of young people get by in life, not even realizing that there is a changemaking potential within them.

This competition enables young people to experience the thrill of being a changemaker. The competition teaches the basic principles of changemaking to young people by a hands-on approach. Young people are encouraged to initiate an idea or activity to create social and economic value by using their natural changemaking abilities. Young people build small teams, develop and disseminate their products and services in real field, discover problems, make improvements in hours and then try again.

Striking Features of the Youth-led Changemaking Competition

- The competition is open to all young people.
- No condition pertaining to qualification, reference, experience, documentation, submission of idea or presentation of idea is required to participate in the competition.
- The competition nurtures and inspires immediate trust in young people. The competition provides financial assistance to young people instantly who are interested to begin their changemaking journey.
- Young people have the opportunity to experience the whole changemaking process from start to finish.
- Complete autonomy is provided to young people to decide the nature of changemaking project.
- The competition creates a favorable environment to support youth-led changemaking within the institution/community before engaging young people in the competition.
